Commissioner orders SAD #44 to re-shape board

The State Department of Education and Cultural Services has ordered SAD #44 to restructure its board of directors, adjusting the number of directors from each town in order to represent more accurately the relative populations of the towns.

In a July 13 letter to Superintendent Dewane Craig, Department Commissioner Eve M. Bither wrote: "We have determined that the School Board is not apportioned in accordance with the 'one man-one vote' principle as required by law."

According to Board Chairman Merton Brown, it appears that if the one-man one-vote principle is applied, Bethel will gain voting power on the board, while Newry and perhaps Greenwood and Andover will lose voting power. Each Bethel director currently represents 406 people (see box), while the Newry directors each represent only 115 people.

Ironically, the impending restructuring was initiated by Newry's attempt to gain more representation on the board. In a May 14 letter to Superintendent Craig, Newry Selectman Roger Hanscom suggested that one director be taken away from Bethel and given to Newry.

Mr. Hanscom based his argument on the relative amount each town is assessed for the SAD #44 budget. That assessment is based primarily on the town's property valuation, and Newry was assessed $326,349 for the FY 88 budget, nearly half as much as Bethel, although Bethel has far more than double the amount of students in the school district as does Newry. The Newry assessment, because of the town's rapid real estate development, represented an increase of 46 percent from the previous year.

At the May 23 board of directors meeting, Newry Director Gail Sykes supported Mr. Hanscom's request. "Newry's [per pupil costs keep rising, but with no added representation," she said.

The board then directed Superintendent Craig to review the matter with the state Board of Education—resulting in the letter from Commissioner Bither.

SAD #44 must now form a reapportionment committee composed of one municipal officer, one citizen at large, and one director from each district town. The board will have 90 days from its first meeting, scheduled for Aug. 17, to submit a reapportionment plan to the state board for approval.

Superintendent Craig said he expects a representative of the state board to help with the process. In addition, the law requires that the commissioner provide the district with at least one recommendation.

Vernon Maxfield accepts position as town manager

Vernon Maxfield, of South Waterford, has accepted the position of Woodstock town manager. He starts his new job on Monday, Aug. 1. As reported in last week's Citizen, The Woodstock Board of Selectmen voted unanimously last Tuesday night to offer him the job, which carries an annual salary of $19,000.

A native of Harrison, Mr. Maxfield has six years' experience in municipal government, having served as a selectman in Waterford for three years, and having spent the next three years as the town's full-time town clerk, tax collector and treasurer.

"I haven't worked in a town manager form of government yet," he said, "but the role is basically similar to what I was doing in Waterford. And population-wise the towns seem to be about the same."

Woodstock First Selectman George Hooper said that interim town manager Dewey Thayer has agreed to work with Mr. Maxfield as he learns the ropes in his new position.

Mr. Hooper said that high on the list of priorities for the new manager will be completing the town's application for FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) money to offset the cost of clean-up and repair work following last year's spring floods.

The town has already received approximately $2,000, Mr. Hooper said, but it is eligible for an additional $9,000 if it can complete the paperwork by Sept. 1.

Mr. Hooper had high praise for Mr. Thayer's contribution in the three months he has served as interim manager. "I personally don't know what we'd have done without his expertise," Mr. Hooper said. "He's been just phenomenal."

The town adopted a town manager form of government in 1987 and the selectmen appointed Kathleen Mersereau, of Rumford, as the first town manager. Her one-year contract was not extended when it came up for renewal this spring.

GIRALDO RIVIERA THE GIRAFFE sets a course for adventure on Lake Christopher in Woodstock. First Mate Ethan Elliott, 4, and Captain (and Mom) Pixie Williams returned from their journey with tales of encountering exotic ducks and turtles. The long-necked Giraldo's resemblance to the Loch Ness monster initially aroused some concern among shoreline residents. "You just don't know anymore what you're going to run into out there," one shaken camp owner said. "I told the selectmen something like this would happen if they didn't stop that clearing work at the boat landing." (Photo by Michael Daniels)

Up from the ashes

Newton & Tebbets marks 50 years of steady growth

Next Monday marks the 50th anniversary of Newton and Tebbets Inc., one of the Bethel area's largest employers.

As the recent closings of Kendall Dowel and Hanover Dowel mills demonstrated, foreign competition and synthetic substitutes for wood have battered the wood products industry of late. But Newton & Tebbets owner Roy Newton reports that the West Bethel firm is in fine shape as it enters its second half-century.

The company now produces a variety of small wood products, including dowels, glue pins, and novelty and flat work. Among the flatwork pieces milled by Newton & Tebbets are the tiles used in the popular Ta-Ka-Radi game.

Newton and Tebbets was founded by E. Lester Tebbets and Roy Newton's father, Burton, in 1938. The two men had been approached by the town of Bethel about the possibility of restarting wood-working operations on the idle Morrill-Adams Company Mill. The 180 foot-long Morrill-Adams mill had been built in 1923 and prior to its closing had been used for the manufacture of small furniture.

The two men restarted the mill, but as a producer of dowels and small wooden toys rather than furniture.

The outbreak of World War II a short while later found the company also making items for the Navy. The War Department considered the work important enough that Burt Newton was repeatedly deferred when he attempted to volunteer for service.

In the years after the war the company grew slowly, and in 1955 Burt Newton purchased his partner's interest in the mill.

That same year, early in the morning of Sept. 29, that growth was suddenly interrupted by a fire of unknown origin that swept through the original mill, burning it to the ground.

Less than a month later, however, Burt Newton, with help and encouragement from his wife Ida and sons Roy and Alan, decided to start over. A new machine shop was the first building to go up, followed eventually by a 40x100-foot mill building, and later by a paint shop and new office space.

Gradually, and despite the inevitable slow stretches, the business grew. The product line was eventually expanded to include the spiral dowel pins, used in furniture-making, plus a variety of novelty pieces.

Newton & Tebbets now employs more

Andover tax bills out; rate set at 17.5 mills

The Andover Town Office last week sent out the tax bills for this year. The rate set by the selectmen was $17.50 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

The rate is lower than last year's rate of $20.50, which was higher than 1986's rate of $15.50. The lowest rate in recent years was back in 1984, when the rate dropped to $8 following a court decision allowing the town to fully tax COMSAT property.

In other news in the town, an official from the Maine Department of Transportation took a first-hand look at the pothole situation on Main Street and assured town officials that the state would pave the shoulder of the road to six feet.

More than 70 people full time, and its wood suppliers bring in hardwood (primarily white birch) from across Maine and New Hampshire.

For the future, Roy Newton sees the company staying in pretty much the same product lines where it has already established itself. But he also doesn't entirely rule out further growth into other lines. "We have basically a wait-and-see perspective," he said.

For local gardeners, the work is as enjoyable as the results

From the first peeking daffodils and crocuses in mud time to the final fading of frost-hearty phlox—in scores of local gardens the colors keep coming from the last snows to the first.

But the casual grace of a perennial garden belies the hard labor that makes it possible for the flowers to flourish during Maine's short growing season and survive its harsh winters.

"My husband jokes that I spend 12 hours a day out here," says Joy Yarnell, whose Upton garden is one of the loveliest and most extensive in the area.

Joy began her garden only six summers ago, when she and her husband, Jim, retired to her family's home on a lupine-lined back road in Upton. She had been inspired to take up gardening by a spring garden tour of England, and by a visit to Bernard McLaughlin's well-known garden in South Paris. "He was in his mid-80s then," she said, "and I said to myself, 'If he can do it, so can I.'"

Joy's garden now includes scores of varieties of both indigenous and exotic plants. It covers nearly half an acre, where rocky, landscaped islands filled with color follow the contour of the land and a small stream meanders along behind the scene.

Irises, daylilies, campanella and geraniums help to set off numerous exotic plants—the result of Joy's constant experimentation to see what new varieties can be made to grow here.

The heart of the garden, however, are species traditional to Maine: Labrador tea, dwarf bilberry, an apple tree, rhodora, five-fingered potentilla, Johnny-jump-ups and Canada lily—this last prized by English gardeners as the most elegant of the lily family.

Joy's imagination works not only in incorporating the exotic into the local, but also in seeing the ornamental in the ordinary: red elderberry, high-bush cranberry, blueberry, and even sheepkill all add form and color to the landscape.

Much of the joys of flower gardens lie in the solitary pleasure of working the earth and in the aesthetic rewards that

Wisely planning for growth

Bethel's Board of Selectmen last week decided it was time to stop temporizing and start really planning for growth of the town.

The two quickest ways of choking off any growth are to not have provisions for sewer waste and solid waste. Not only would lack of such essential services shut off growth, the lack of such municipal necessities would also pose a health hazard to the residents of the community.

The selectmen, at the suggestion of the town manager, decided to tackle the issue of the inefficient sewer system by drastically increasing the charges levied against users of the municipal sewer. They also put the town on notice that even non-users of the municipal sewer are going to be expected to foot part of the bill for the needed sewer plant repair.

This warning will, of course, bring protests from those residents who use private sewer systems. However, all residents must bear in mind that not everyone in town will be served equally by all public services. Those people who live away from the village require more in the way of fire-fighting apparatus than those who live close-in. Those who live at a distance require more services from the road department in terms of extra trucks and extra fuel for the longer trips from the garage. Those who live far from the schools require more in the way of school bus capability than those who live close in. On the other hand, those who live close in benefit from municipal sewer and water services—for which they also pay. One must operate town government on the assumption that the extra costs placed on the municipality by those who live outside the village are approximately equal to the extra costs placed on the municipality by those who enjoy municipal sewer and water.

In any case, no matter who pays, it is quite clear that the state Department of Environmental Protection will not allow the town sewer to continue to pollute the Androscoggin River. And quite rightly. Also, the DEP will not allow hook-ups of any additional large-scale developments. This means that potential new customers who could help pay for new sewer lines will not be able to sign up as customers.

When the Bethel Inn tied in its 40 condo units to the Broad Street sewer, they did so only after they enlarged and replaced most of the Broad Street sewer line at their own expense. If they could tie in their planned 20 additional units, they would replace other portions of leaking sewer lines as a quid pro quo.

The promise of a shopping center at the corner of Bridge and Cross streets will never come to fruition unless the development can tie into the sewer. And it will never get state permission to tie in unless the state is satisfied that the sewer system can accommodate the additional influx.

As for solid waste, the selectmen finally decided that recycling can prolong the life of the town's present—and priceless—landfill. They decreed that a recycling system should be in effect by next July. Further than that, they decided that the town should control its own solid waste fate rather than hurriedly joining a compact with surrounding towns. They also decided to set up an advisory committee to look into all alternatives for the future of the town's solid waste.

Keep in mind that the present landfill only has, at most, three years of life remaining. That means solutions must be arrived at quickly so that detailed planning can begin on a transfer station or whatever. The town manager told the selectmen that he envisions the town having a commercial hauler truck the solid waste to Norridgewock after the present landfill is closed—for a short while, at least. In the long run, he hopes the town can find one of western Maine's projected incinerating plants to burn the town's trash.

In either case, residents can expect the budget for solid waste to exceed all expectations. Tripling the present solid waste budget would probably not be too far off. Those who doubt such dire predictions need only read the comments of the owner of the Norridgewock landfill, warning that the per ton tipping fee there will be going up again, drastically, in the near future.

Good luck for the next decades

Congratulations are in order for two of Bethel's proudest institutions. The Bethel Inn this month celebrated its 75th anniversary, while the Newton & Tebbets Mill next month celebrates its 50th.

Both establishments have suffered through some hard times. But both show that vision, determination, and hard work can provide new opportunities and new life even when the original dream fades.

Both the Inn and Newton & Tebbets have made their reputations by providing the customer an excellent product at a fair price, as well as offering good employment opportunities to area residents.

Both are to be congratulated for their fine accomplishments to date. We wish them continued success in the future.

CMP and Hydro-Quebec sign power contract

Officers of Hydro-Quebec and Central Maine Power Company last Wednesday signed a contract for 29 years of Canadian power sales to Maine.

Quebec Prime Minister Robert Bourassa and Maine Governor John McKernan attended the signing ceremony at the Maine State House.

The contract commits CMP to buying a minimum of 300 megawatts (MW) of Hydro-Quebec power, beginning with a 100 MW block in 1992. Various options could increase the contract purchase to 600 MW, if needed. If resale opportunities develop, the contract allows CMP to take 800-1,000 MW.

The PUC must review and approve the proposed sale before it can take effect; a decision is due by January 1989.

Lakes Assoc. sponsors student essay contest

The Community Lakes Association of Woodstock and Greenwood will sponsor an essay contest on the subject of "What our lakes/ponds/rivers and streams mean to us and what we need to do to protect them."

Any student enrolled in SAD #44 is eligible to participate.

There will be $300 in prizes. There will be four $25 prizes for students in grades 1-5, two $50 prizes for students in grades 6-8 and a $100 prize for a student in grades 9-12.

The approximate length of essay should be 50-250 words for students in Grade 1-5, 200-250 words for students in Grade 6-8 and 500 words for students in Grade 9-12.

Gardens

follow. But there are social pleasures as well.

"In a small town we talk garden," says Margaret Tibbets, of Paradise Hill. "When we meet in town, it's the first thing we say to each other."

The rock garden behind Margaret's house was started by her sister in 1975, but her family has always had gardens of one sort or another. The flowering crab planted by her mother can still be seen behind the family's former house on Main Street (now Karen Brown's house).

"My family had to have a garden," she says. "We just had to."

Margaret grows vegetables, but clearly prefers the demanding pleasures of flowers. "Flowers are much more difficult and fun, because you are always thinking about what to do next year. The planning is always a challenge."

Likely, Margaret gets many of her ideas—and many of her plants—from other gardeners. And both enjoy studying plants during otherwise idle winter hours, but Margaret cautions about attempting to transfer winter fantasies into summer realities, at least hereabouts. "It's fun to read about, for instance, English gardens," she says, "but their conditions are so much different than ours. Even what you read in books [about North American gardens] has little to do with Oxford County. Our winters are just too tough."

Gertrude Hutchins, who has tended her garden on Clark Street for more than 40 years, acknowledges this common frustration with the limits imposed by Maine winters. "I guess I've gotten used to it," she says, "but sometimes I do get tired of seeing the same old things."

One play for outfoxing Cold Man Winter is to pot less hardy plants, such as begonia, and take them inside at the end of the season. This technique allows Gertrude to grow exotics such as bergenia and boxwood—a sentimental favorite from her midwestern childhood.

With work and patience even the coldest spots can have color. A rock retaining wall on the north side of the Hutchins house is covered with hardy local plants, including bloodroot and a variety of ferns—even some from the Greenwood ice caves. And in spring the rocks cascade with the bright yellows of basket-of-gold alyssum and yellow lady's slipper.

Local gardeners seem to agree that planting cold-tolerant species is perhaps the best solution to the stresses of Maine winters, but there are a number of other ways to help less-hardy species winter-over successfully.

Gardening enthusiast John Gauthier, of Bethel, recommends diligent weeding during the growing season, going easy on the fertilizer toward fall (it encourages vulnerable new growth), and in winter, using natural snow method. "Snow's the best bet," he says, "covering the plant with plenty of snow helps it retain its ty and quality of research.

At Monday night's board of directors meeting, the following directors were chosen to serve on the reapportionment committee: Andover—Rex Thurston, Bethel—John Brown, Greenwood—Nancy Dewing, Newry—Gail Sysko, Woodstock—Debra Poland.

It appears inevitable that the reapportionment will have just the opposite effect intended by Mr. Hancock when he first raised the issue. "I don't see why [town] population has anything to do with it," he said of the apportionment process, suggesting apportionment be based on assessments rather than population. "Bethel has seven times as many pupils as Newry does, but we pay moisture and protects it from being dried out by winter winds."

Cold, of course, is only one of many hazards faced by the rural gardener. Deer, muskrats, raccoons and other critters, while generally partial to vegetable gardens, can also demonstrate a refined taste in flowers.

Under the cover of darkness, even creatures with no interest in eating flowers can quickly destroy a season of hard work.

One fall day, for example, Joy sprayed a patch of rhododendron with an antidiarrhetic spray, to protect them from the winter winds. But she awoke the next morning to find that a bear, apparently attracted to the spray, had rolled over and over on the bed, crushing nearly all the plants.

And there are still larger threats. "There are a lot of moose out here," she says, "and when one of them decides to take a stroll through the garden, that's the end of everything in its path."

Tire dump

portion of that will be covered with tires. Most of the property will be used for set-backs, a visual buffer strip, ponds for water, and a fire break.

The DEP official said fire is the greatest concern, and local fire departments will be asked for comments when the formal application is made to the state agency.

As for fears of contaminating the soil or the air, Mr. Pelletier emphasized, "It's not hazardous waste. Your main concern is just controlling fires."

When the plan first surfaced nearly two years ago, however, it quickly became obvious that local people had many concerns other than fires, and Greenwood Selectwoman Bartlett is ready for another lively debate on the matter. "We're just sitting tight to see what DEP is going to do," she said.

The DEP's Pelletier indicated that his agency would be pleased to license a tire recycling facility. There are presently no licensed dumps in the state of Maine, he said, and tires are being disposed of illegally throughout the area. Just in the Bethel-Albany area alone, there are at least a half-dozen illegal tire dumps, he said. And that's not uncommon, he added. "There's a time-honored tradition of taking tires out back and dumping them."

The DEP is anxious to get tire-dumping under control, and to do it would need a licensed facility to accept used tires. "If they [the Gordons] can come up with a bonafide plan, I'm all for it," he said.

As for the numbers of tires the facility would eventually be handling, Mr. Pelletier said, "There could potentially be upwards of a million tires. But instead of just dumping them there, they'll be laced together." He said the tire piles would be a maximum of 100-feet by 100-feet.

He said the facility, as proposed by the Gordons, would not be a dump but rather a recycling center. Eventually the owners might purchase a shredder to chip those tires that could not be used for retreading. There is a growing market for the high BTU chips at power plants in southern New England, Mr. Pelletier said.

Project Graduation participation goes up

Ninety-seven percent of Maine's public and private high schools participated in Project Graduation activities in Maine this year, Educational and Cultural Services Commissioner Eve M. Bither has announced.

The involvement by 144 out of the 148 secondary schools reflected a three percent increase over last year, Commissioner Bither indicated. She said the figures are contained in a preliminary report she has received from Director Carl D. Mowatt of the Division of Alcohol and Drug Education Services.

Commissioner Bither added that 12,646 out of 15,539 graduating seniors participated in the event, for a total of 81 percent, an increase of one percent over last year.

The report also shows that during the time period of May 15 through June 20 there were no teenage highway fatalities related to alcohol or other drugs in Maine.

I remember many things, mostly pedestrian, like picking wild strawberries, transplanting the tomatoes she started in February, singing at her Grange programs, mowing the lawn with an unmortized mower, and getting a nickel to spend at Lee's (now Bob's) for filling her water jugs at the spring.

I realize that living to be 80 isn't such a big deal these days, but I wanted to know now, just in case, that my brothers and I are very lucky to have her as our grandmother. She won't read her obituary or hear us reminiscing over snapshots at her wake, and I don't want to be sorry that I never took the time to tell her that I am very proud to be her granddaughter. THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

All members and friends of the Bethel Historical Society are invited to the next monthly meeting will be Thursday, Aug. 4, in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Featured speaker for the evening will be Jane Radcliffe, former curator of domestic and fine arts at the Maine State Museum. She will make a slide presentation on "Early 19th Century Wall Decorators."

This program is one of a series of events highlighting the 175th anniversary of the construction of the Dr. Moses Mason House, which contains outstanding examples of the work of the famous wall decorator Rufus Porter. Anyone interested in attending this meeting is cordially invited to do so.

Plans for the 8th annual Sudbury Canada Days, the Bethel Historical Society's summer heritage festival, are progressing well. The theme of this year's children's parade—coordinated by Terry Perry—will be "Nursery Rhymes." Flowers will again be needed for the flower show in the Dr. Moses Mason House. Anyone willing to bring a bouquet or two to the house before noon on Saturday, Aug. 13, is asked to do so. Old time children's games will be supervised by Betsy Paquette. Helen Morton will again head the art show. Local artists are encouraged to display their work. Horse-drawn hayrides will be offered this year by Jim Haskell and an exhibit of farming and logging tools will be offered as well as videos relating to logging. Also featured again this year will be badminton, horseshoes, and croquet tournaments, the log drivers' bean supper, an old time variety show, and an old-fashioned church service. Craft demonstrations and exhibits will also be featured on the lawn of the Dr. Moses Mason House. Volunteers are always needed and anyone wishing to help should call the Society office at 824-2908.

Newest member of the Society is Donald B. Wales, of Salem, Oregon. Mr. Wales is a descendant of Benjamin Russell Sr., who came to Bethel in the 1770s and later became the town's first town clerk. The latest contributor to the 1988 Endowment Campaign is Mrs. Barbara Patterson, of Bethel, given in memory of her husband Wayne and her son Larry.

As for fears of contaminating the soil or the air, Mr. Pelletier emphasized, "It's not hazardous waste. Your main concern is just controlling fires."

When the plan first surfaced nearly two years ago, however, it quickly became obvious that local people had many concerns other than fires, and Greenwood Selectwoman Bartlett is ready for another lively debate on the matter. "We're just sitting tight to see what DEP is going to do," she said.

The DEP's Pelletier indicated that his agency would be pleased to license a tire recycling facility. There are presently no licensed dumps in the state of Maine, he said, and tires are being disposed of illegally throughout the area. Just in the Bethel-Albany area alone, there are at least a half-dozen illegal tire dumps, he said. And that's not uncommon, he added. "There's a time-honored tradition of taking tires out back and dumping them."

The DEP is anxious to get tire-dumping under control, and to do it would need a licensed facility to accept used tires. "If they [the Gordons] can come up with a bonafide plan, I'm all for it," he said.

As for the numbers of tires the facility would eventually be handling, Mr. Pelletier said, "There could potentially be upwards of a million tires. But instead of just dumping them there, they'll be laced together." He said the tire piles would be a maximum of 100-feet by 100-feet.

He said the facility, as proposed by the Gordons, would not be a dump but rather a recycling center. Eventually the owners might purchase a shredder to chip those tires that could not be used for retreading. There is a growing market for the high BTU chips at power plants in southern New England, Mr. Pelletier said.

"AS IDLE AS A PAINTED SHIP, UPON A PAINTED OCEAN"—A recent regatta of the North Pond Sailing Association found the Sunfish floundering with little or no air. Some even deigned to accept a motorized tow. The association has a series of sailing events scheduled for the rest of the summer on both North Pond and Lake Christopher. The association sails a fleet of Sunfish, but all small sailboats are welcome to join in the fun.

Nice soft rain falling this morning giving the gardens a much needed drink. I'm sure it will help them a lot. We have been lucky to have ours look rather good most of the time so far, but Russell has had barrels out to catch water whenever it has rained a little and used the water to help the gardens. Every little bit helps, as the saying goes.

The roses are kind of going by some but the lilies are so pretty that are blossoming out front. The pansies are beautiful and such lovely faces on the blossoms, marigolds and other plants in bloom help make the yard look good. We had quite a lot of peas to take care of this year but would have had more if we had gotten the rain needed. However, we are thankful for what we have put up for the coming year. Had lots of beet greens that we have frozen and some chard and it looks like we would have to take care of more chard soon. It has grown so well since it was cut. Russell even brought in a head of cauliflower the other day and was it good. Broccoli is ready or at least some of it. There will be more later as he has set out plants recently. Broccoli and cauliflower will grow good in cooler weather and the worms aren't as active at that time.

Have been having another spell of staph infection and a bad one this time. Still not rid of it completely but hope I will be soon. It can sure make one feel rather sick.

Didn't feel the best last week but on Friday, Peggy invited Charlotte Cole to lunch and to play her guitar so we could all sing. Thought we would have a singing together at the grange but didn't have it after all. Charlotte played but we didn't sing. We enjoyed her visit and she stayed with me while Peggy took Russell to town for an errand. After they got back, Peggy, Charlotte and Russell went to East Dixfield to the cookout supper and the grange meeting afterward.

Saturday morning, Peggy and I went to town to get groceries. Had one or two other errands to do and then home to take care of peas. Peggy went to Greene to the dance in the evening. Charlotte and Grace came down this way so she went with them.

Didn't do too much on Sunday but rest and maybe sew or crochet a little. Had a sweater in the making but finished that Friday night so have sewed or did more on crocheting since. Finished a dolly that I had in the making and as usual it was an original.

We did take a ride on Sunday afternoon and went to Jay to visit Peggy's granddaughter and family. Pam and Cam have three boys and we had a good visit with all.

Monday was grange night at Bryant Pond and we attended that. Peggy had to get the officers as it was assistant's night. She also had to get up the program and it turned out good. Russell and I had a skit about remembering when and had old papers to tell of things and prices of the past which were interesting. Rather different but interesting.

Tuesday was not a busy day for me. I did lots of resting as felt tired from this staph infection. I think so much antibiotics makes one tired anyway. Had an appointment with Dr. Jealous in the evening and Peggy drove me over. Russell had picked peas in the late afternoon and we had put up six packages of them so have about 52 pints in the freezer. Not bad for the weather we have had.

Felt tired on Wednesday so rested several times that day also. Knew that Wynona was bringing Kariann up to stay for a few days so decided to get what rest I could. They came in the middle of the afternoon and as Nona had a cake decoration for Peggy for future use, she went up to talk with her for awhile and the girls followed suit. Nona went from here to see Dr. Shedd in North Bridgton and then home. She said she had to go get Mike when he was done work at 9:30 as his car went on the blink again. Hope he gets it fixed all right.

Kariann is here and being a good girl for Nona. She usually is.

Don't forget that dance at West Paris

Lakes Association holds session on water testing

The Community Lakes Association of Woodstock and Greenwood will sponsor a lake monitoring workshop at the Conservation School in Bryant Pond, on Saturday, Aug. 6, at 10 a.m.

The purpose of the workshop is to demonstrate how the purity, clarity and quality of lake water is tested.

Resource persons for the workshop will be Jim Chandler, an instructor at the Conservation School, and Scott Williams of the Lakes Environmental Services of Maine.

The Lakes Association plans to make available to anyone who is interested monitoring kits with which they can test their own lake water.

The workshop is free and is open to the public. Everyone interested in preserving a high quality environment in and around area lakes is invited to attend.

Grange Hall the first Saturday in August. Good music and good fun as usual so come and enjoy yourselves while helping the grange.

Nothing more to report that I know of so take care one and all and have a good week.

From the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

Executive Secretary Robin Zinchuk reports as follows:

The Chamber Board of Directors held their regular monthly meeting Thursday, July 14. Community relations Chairwoman Cathy Newell reported that her committee is still in the process of developing the Bethel Area Business Booklet. The magnitude of this very worthwhile project has become apparent—we hope to have it printed by the fall.

Advertising: The Chamber is planning to put co-op ads in "The Maine Guide to Winter" and "The New England Skier's Guide." Advertisers are reminded that the Chamber needs to hear from them if they want to participate in these projects.

Membership: Chairwoman Linda Best said efforts will be forthcoming to approach businesses about their support of the Chamber.

Fundraising: Chairman Dillon Gillies started discussion on the possibility of doing another road race this fall.

Bulletin Boards: Chairman Steve Rhodes reported that he plans to do some upgrading on the Riverside Rest Area sign and that the Snow Falls sign was in excellent condition.

Publications: Chairwoman Sandra Gunther reported that our new brochure is hot off the press. Businesses are encouraged to come and get some to have for their customers.

Big E: Chairman Bill Riley reported that plans are well underway for our Chamber's participation in the Springfield Expo, Sept. 14-25. He is working out the details with committee people.

Robin gave the executive director's report. She reported on the Chamber's participation in an attempt to apply for a grant to study childcare needs in our community. More on this later. Ski Maine has approached the Chamber about having a booth at the Boston Ski Show in November. Robin also reported that the Board retreat/goal setting session, held in June, was very constructive. One of the primary concerns of the group was to work on obtaining public access to a pond in our area to have a swimming beach/recreation area. Anyone knowing of a piece of land for sale on any one of our ponds or rivers that would be suitable for this purpose, please call the Chamber office, 824-2282. We'd appreciate this information.

The by-laws were reviewed and adopted. It was voted to purchase an "open" flag for the Chamber office. It was also voted to contact the Town of Woodstock about the monies they voted to give the Chamber.

The Bethel Area Chamber organized the Mollycodd Day Classic this year which was held Saturday morning, July 16.

Under cloudy skies, but perfect weather for running, 68 children ran the one mile course and 69 adults undertook the five mile "Paradise Hill Challenge." The results were reported in last week's Citizen.

The Chamber would like to thank the Seltzer & Rydhom Co. of Auburn for donating juice for the race, the Bethel IGA for donating watermelon, and the Bethel Savings Bank for donating the awards and trophies. Also to the following merchants who donated prizes: Bonema Potters (two gift certificates won by Liz Long and Kevin McDonald); Bethel Craftworks, gift certificate to Lynn Gentling; one day pass to Sunday River to Bob Power; one free nurturing massage from Fran and Kathleen Szostek to Eileen Granahan; dinner for two at Sudbury Inn to Mitchell Lovering; one TA-KA-RADI game to George Rice; $10 gift certificate from Fashion Basket to Mike Farnham; $10 gift certificate from Mothers' to Joseph Linneman; one night for two at Riverview Motel to

This week began with hot and "muggy" days. The air was so lifeless, there was no higher wind to float the woolpack clouds through the dull heavens. No breeze moved low upon the earth to stir the curtains at open windows. Then one day, which began with gray clouds and the same stale air lying nearly stagnant upon the heated earth changed about noon. There came a stir of wind, waves came up the pond, a darkening to the west and the first small scattering of rain drops. To the senses came the faint, cool smell of grass.

This helped to awaken our gardens, which had been standing still from dryness. My flowers nodded a bow of thanks as they whispered to one another. Standing near the door I could hear the rainsound in the trees and leaves and the muffled hum and beat of the rain from the earth everywhere.

The next day I went up the hill on an old road. Down the hill, beyond a pasture, lay the pond and its blue distance. To the west stood a stone wall and over it the immense and fiery sun.

I saw but a few bobolinks for at about July 20 they say goodbye. First they stop singing, then go melting out of the landscape all at once.

From here where I stood there opens a great and winding view of mountains and a landscape of thriving meadows and farms.

I could hear the continuous hum of insects working on the clover and the bright expanse of field flowers. Finding this interesting I stood for a little time in a hollow filled with insect music.

Looking into the distance I could see on to a landscape divided, as a map might be, into different colors, brown of mud, green of grass, deep green of pines and firs and light greens of the hard woods.

The distant water rippled with the sunlight.

I left it all and journeyed down the hill toward home.

When I opened the door, the rooms were full of sunlight—quiet and a sense of emptiness but I entered and went to the window to look down at the pond into the brightness of the sinking sun and the solitude of this summer day.

We survived the heat during the week and so did the animals. Three bears have been reported roaming around in different sections. The moose are still on the lake and deer have been in the fields.

I have caught up on my lawn and weeding after avoiding work during the hot, hot days.

Swimming classes are being taught at Vernon Linnan's beach. A bus travels by here several days of the week.

David Holt and daughter, Mary, joined the family at the farm on Sunday.

One day during the week I went to the beach with Denise Adams and enjoyed the cool breeze.

Mildred Bowman, of Hebron, and Alton Kimball, of West Paris, were callers of Dorothy Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Mills, of Shapleigh, also called.

Alpha DiArenzo had the Tuesday Club at her home this week. We were glad to see Dennis Hayes with us again. She came up from Gray with Sally Holt.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Inman have returned from vacation at the coast.

Rena Curtis spent the weekend with her daughters, Colista Cogswell and Lilian Strait, in Freeport and attended the Clam Festival in Yarmouth. She also called on her brother in Brunswick and visited at Bailey's Island.

Barbara Inmonen was a caller at Fay Holts.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Pulsifer entertained at their Class of '31 reunion from Mechanic Falls on the weekend. This was their 57th year and 14th consecutive gathering. Assisting Mrs. Pulsifer were Mrs. Sharon Bumpas and Mrs. Sharon True. Attending were the Sub. Master, Clifford Jordan, Frances Carter Bumpas, Ruth Thompson Truman, Mr. and Mrs. William Goss and brother, Paul Goss, from Florida; Earl Briggs, Wilson Raymond and wife, from Ohio; Helen Harmon Sawyer and husband, Berchard and Mr. and Mrs. Max Pulsifer. There were two guests, Estel Crocker and Carlene Thomas. It was a good day, a good time and they are planning on next year. Max and Marion have had all reunions but one.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews took dinner with me Wednesday, July 13. We had a nice visit. Esther Davis came up in the evening and visited with us awhile. Arthur mowed my little lawns in front of the house.

Thursday I went to Norway shopping and to Dr. Mason in the afternoon. At night Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks and I were in South Paris to their grange. The third and fourth degree was worked on a candidate. Lettie acted as master.

Esther Davis worked on the Tri-Town sale at Trap Corner, Saturday and Sunday mornings.

Sunday evening Esther had a birthday. She invited in Ethel Twitchell, Patsy Tibbets and daughter, Jackie, and friend, and Olive Davis for cake and ice cream. Edith Deegan had arrived home from her work in Portland so joined the group. Esther had two cake and beautiful cards and other gifts.

Carl, Lettie and I attended Franklin Grange Monday evening.

Lloyd Merryfield has cut most of the hay on Maple Farm. One more field to go.

Richard and Barbara Felt, Lucille Robbins and Florence Gustafson attended Franklin Grange Guest Officers Assistant's Night, Monday.

The heat is lingering on as of Monday night but the rain Tuesday was a welcome sight for the gardens.

I wish I had more news for you but people are laying low I guess as no one is stirring up any dust but my cat who is bound to be in my lap while I am trying to write. He is a darling anyway.

Playing exceptionally well all weekend, the All Stars finished in fourth place. Tim Remington and Josh Otten displayed some very gutsy pitching. Adam Hart of the Bethel Red Sox hit three runs, Tyrel Bartholomew had one and Jeff Ippolito had one. Braves Coach Tom Remington had this to say, "I'm real happy with how Josh has progressed as a pitcher. When I first began coaching Josh about four years ago, I knew he was a kid loaded with ability but I didn't think he would have the composure to be an effective pitcher. But as he has grown and matured he surely has surprised me."

"This tournament that we've attended for two years now is an extremely emotional and physically demanding series of baseball games. All the All Stars from the Northern Oxford County Little League, I know, have learned a great deal from this experience and have grown closer together. They should all be proud of what they have done. I know that I am extremely proud of the boys from the Bethel Braves, who were there and represented the team and the Town of Bethel. Jeff Ippolito, Rumford Point, in an effort to make a game saving throw from center field, overexerted himself so hard that he suffered a broken arm. All of us wish Jeff a very speedy recovery."

In the final game of the regular scheduled games last week, the Bethel Red Sox and the Braves met again, with a 16-6 victory for the Braves. Adam Taylor pitched three and a third innings, gave up one hit, walked 11 batters and struck out eight.

Relief pitcher Steve Remington came in and gave up one hit, walked one and struck out five of the eight batters he faced. As a team, the Braves pounded out 16 hits, including two home runs by Tyrel Bartholomew. The Braves picked up 15 runs in the first two innings, according to Red Sox spokesman, Bill Myers. Great teamwork was again displayed by the Sox, as Clint Myers pitched two innings, followed by Adam Newell pitching the last four. Though it was a loss for the Sox, a well played game enabled them to hold the Braves for a time.

The Braves final game of the season was with Andover on July 29. Tim Remington pitched three innings and one hit, struck out eight and walked only one hit. Josh Otten pitched six, he struck out seven, as a team they scored 36 runs, an all time high for the Tyrel Bartholomew hit his usual run. Coach Remington said he was exceptionally pleased with his sub and that with the season wound a record of 15 wins and no something to be proud of.

The Red Sox make-up game Bryant Pond proved to be another saw battle according to Bill Myers. He witnessed an action packed game resulting in an 18-17 win for Bryant Pond. Wade Luxton and Adam Newell each shared two innings.

When West Paris and the came together last week both experienced a watchful eye which runs from being scored. Even the Sox had a 3-1 loss, five innings pitched by Adam Luxton and on by Adam Newell coupled with teamwork ended their final game season on a positive note, and they ready to face their first game with Bryant Pond.

Coach Carroll Murphy described the game with the Sox as a water power, as the roar of a water power, all other sounds in the world did the cheers from the Bethel parents and fans as they watched the final game of the season. I understand it a fire within each player. The Bethel Red Sox were untouchable. Both teams played a ball, with many good hits and Nathan McVeigh did a fine job of shortstop. He also displayed a natural for him upon gaining first as he raced around the bases. The plate giving us one of the tributes to our 15-13 win over the Red Sox. We now move into the final game of the season, our first with West Paris being our first. I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the people who volunteer their time and effort to coach special thanks to Joe Harvey for coaching and Sue Harvey for keeping all the games and helping coaching a boy on Little League and

CHOOSING A LOG HOME REP IS AS IMPORTANT AS CHOOSING A LOG HOME COMPANY.

Who's going to help you with site selection, custom design, pre-planning, cost comparison and financing? Who will be there when your kit arrives? Whose construction experience will you depend on? Sure, a good log home company is important. But a good log home rep is invaluable.

When I first began coaching Josh about four years ago, I knew he was a kid loaded with ability but I didn't think he would have the composure to be an effective pitcher. But as he has grown and matured he surely has surpassed me."

This tournament, that we've attended for two years now, is an extremely emotional and physically demanding series of baseball games. All the All Stars from the Northern Oxford County Little League, I know, have learned a great deal from this experience and have grown closer together. They should all be proud of what they have done. I know I am extremely proud of the boys from the Bethel Braves who were there to represent the team and the Town.

After the game, Josh Otten, Tyrel Bartholomew, Jason Fraser, Adam Hart, Steve Remington and Tim Remington. I'm proud of you.

Jeff Ippolito, Rumford Point, in an effort to make a game saving throw from under the ball, overexerted himself so hard that he suffered a broken arm. All of us wish him a very speedy recovery.

In the first game of the regular season last week, the Bethel Braves and the Braves met again, with a 1-0 victory for the Braves. Adam Hart pitched three and a third innings, gave up one hit, walked 11 batters and struck out eight.

Bethel pitcher Steve Remington came out with one hit, walked one and struck out five of the eight batters he faced. A few Braves pounded out hits, including two home runs by Tyrel Bartholomew. The Braves picked up 15 runs in the first two innings, according to the box score.

Bethel's ace pitcher, Bill Myers, Great Falls, was again displayed by the Braves. Last Myers pitched two innings, allowed by Adam Newell pitching the last out. Though it was a loss for the Sox, the Braves' game enabled them to hold the Braves for a time.

The Braves' final game of the season was with the Braves on July 29. Tim Remington pitched three innings and gave up one hit, struck out eight and had no walks. Josh Otten pitched the last three innings giving up only one hit. Although he walked six, he struck out seven batters. As a team they scored 36 runs on 25 hits, an all time high for the Braves. Tyrel Bartholomew hit his usual home run. Coach Remington said he was exceptionally pleased with his substitutes, and that with the season wound up with a record of 15 wins and no losses—something to be proud of.

The Red Sox make-up game with Bryant Pond proved to be another see-saw battle according to Bill Myers. Fans witnessed an action packed game resulting in an 18-17 win for Bryant Pond. Adam Hart, Wade Luxton and Adam Newell each shared two innings of pitching.

When West Paris and the Red Sox came together last week both teams experienced a watchful eye which kept few runs from being scored. Even though the Sox had a 3-1 loss, five innings of great pitching by Adam Luxton and one inning by Adam Newell coupled with great teamwork ended their final game of the season on a positive note, and leaving them ready to face their first playoff game with Bryant Pond.

Coach Carroll Murphy described their game with the Red Sox last week in this manner, "As the roar of a waterfall overpowers all other sounds in the vicinity, so did the cheers from the Bethel Blues parents and fans as they watched the final game of the season. This experience lit a fire within each player that the Bethel Reds were unable to extinguish. Both teams played excellent ball, with many good hits and catches. Nathan McVey did a fine job filling in at shortstop. He also displayed a speed natural for him upon gaining first base as he raced around the bases to cross the plate giving us one of the runs contributing to our 15-13 win over the Bethel Reds. We now move into the playoffs, with West Paris being our first rival."

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the people who volunteered to umpire our games and coach bases. A special thanks to Joe Harvey for helping coach and Sue Harvey for keeping score at all the games and helping coach. Having a boy on Little League and one on Farm League only leaves two nights a week free. I truly appreciate your generosity with your time. You are both to be commended. Thank you all.

The Reds played a real close game with the Blues considering they only had eight players. It seems that some of the Reds players also play on other teams, according to Coach Jim Fiske. The team played its usual good game and went on to gain a victory over Rumford Point with a 23-4 win. The Reds have won their first playoff game with the Greens.

LIKE LATTER DAY HUCK FINNS, the students in Gould Academy's Summer Challenge course—a class run jointly by Gould and Outward Bound—were given the task of finding some exotic treasure on the banks of the Androscoggin River. Their assignment included devising a way of getting to it, finding it, and bringing it back to their starting point—at the Twin Oaks Campground. Above, they head down the river, towards the spot on the opposite bank marking the treasure. The purpose of the course is to develop leadership and cooperation among the students.

Mr. and Mrs. Masters York, of Williamstown, Vt., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary by entertaining a group of about 70 relatives and friends at a luncheon and program at the Trinity Methodist Church in Montpelier, Vermont, on July 2 at 1 p.m.

Mrs. York is the former Alfreda Wheeler of Bethel and Mr. York was also a Maine native having lived the early part of his life in Winthrop. The couple were married in the Bethel Methodist Church on July 2, 1938, the Rev. Percy J. Clifford officiating.

The luncheon for the anniversary celebration was served by the ladies society of the church. The tables were decorated with flowers and candles and at the close of the meal a beautiful three tiered anniversary cake was served, being the gift of a former pupil and friend of the honored couple.

A program followed the meal, with vocal solos by Daniel Hudson, of Hardwick, Vt. Robert and Marilyn Nims, of Delaware, Ohio, and Irene Bodwell, of Cabot, Vt. Mr. Nims, who is head of the music department at the Wesleyan College, accompanied all the other vocalists, which his wife accompanied by his wife, who also teaches music at Ohio Wesleyan.

Members of the original wedding party, seated at the head table were, besides the bride and groom, Elmina Doyen, of Bethel, matron of honor and sister of the bride, three bridesmaids, Marion Winters, of St. Albans, Vt., Ruth MacKenzie, of Barre, Vt., and Frances Harrington, of Winthrop; and Marjorie Doyen Awaft, of Augusta, who was flower girl at the wedding. A decoration on the head table was the original basket carried by the flower girl 50 years ago, which had been filled with flowers for the occasion.

Besides the wedding party, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Nims, of Montpelier, Vt., who were celebrating their 56th anniversary on the same date, were seated at the head table. Long time friends, the two couples have celebrated their anniversaries together for the past several years.

Mrs. Connie Hindman was also at the head table and acted as mistress of ceremonies, introducing the singers and those who spoke on the program.

Guests who spoke were Lawrence Maxham of San Diego, Calif., now a member of a three man law firm, who was a former pupil at Plainfield, Vt., High School when Mrs. York was teaching there; Mrs. Bessie Dailey, of Williamstown, Vt., a neighbor and friend; Mrs. Harrington and Mrs. Nims.

At the close of the program the guests greeted one another and visited informally, signing the guest book which was circulated by Miss MacKenzie. Many of the guests were from Maine and there were others from Connecticut, Ohio and California as well as Vermont.

Mrs. Ethel Herr is convalescing at Stephens Memorial Hospital after suffering a broken hip in a fall at her summer cottage here. Two of her daughters were with her.

Weston Flint and Mrs. Winona Verrill, of South Paris, were callers of Mrs. Elmina Doyen last weekend.

NEWS FROM THE BETHEL AREA

Health Center

Kathie Parker, LPN, from the Bethel Area Health Center, recently attended an HIV counselling workshop presented by the Department of Human Services in Portland. HIV is the virus that is the cause of AIDS.

- In order to assure maximum confidentiality, the patient is required to pay cash for the visit and not involve any third party reimbursement and risk forfeiture of insurance coverage.

- The patient must agree to pre-test and post-test counselling.

- Anyone with recent possible exposure should agree to re-test in six months as it takes two weeks to six months to have a positive result.

Simply call the center and ask for a counselling appointment with any of our doctors, as they all have had instruction in counselling.

Additionally, Ms. Parker has now completed the course and is also available.

Mrs. Christine Kimball and Mrs. Pamela Rugg were at the doctor's in Harrison the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parsons took his brother George to the Portland airport for his return flight to his home in La Puente, Calif.

Dana Self is spending this week at Camp Barea, on Bear Pond, Turner.

Mrs. Agnes Lahti, of Waterford, visited her brother Bill Bancroft Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kallis and sons John and Mark, of Hingham, Mass., will spend this weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Kallis. Mrs. Kathy Kallis has just returned from spending three weeks in Guatemala.

Brandon Salway is at U.S.M., where he is a counsellor at a soccer camp.

The day I'd both anticipated and dreaded arrived last Saturday. We went to East Stoneham to the summer home of the Andrews on Lake Kewadin for a reunion of the Class of '38 of Norway High School. Eighteen of the 20 graduates were there, one coming from Northern California and seeing her classmates for the first time since 1938. The weather was great for the occasion, a superb lunch and an afternoon of getting acquainted and reminiscing and then we went our separate ways for a respite before joining the rest of the alumni for an annual banquet in South Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, Diedre and Jim are spending a week at the Clark-Nichols camp.

Sidney Abbott, Jeanne and Seth Abbott, Eric Buck and Iva, of Sumner, visited at Heritage Farm recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Griffen visited his sister, Margaret Mitchell, recently.

Pete Eames and Eames Equipment installed several culverts on Backstreet recently.

One Backstreet resident planted two tamarack trees—just in case.

The hummers are back in force. They provide much enjoyment both for us and guests.

Bob Judkins attended the 45th anniversary celebration held Saturday for his parents in Canton.

Clayton Thompson attended the Norway High School Alumni reunion banquet along with two other members of the Class of '45.

The strawberry season has been good in spite of excessive cold and heat. It has been nice to make new acquaintance and to visit with long time friends. One of the latter offered to come help pick if we couldn't keep up. I didn't accept but was so pleased with the sincere offer that it perked me up in the wilting heat. We are still picking in the new bed whatever cedar waxwings leave for us. We are going to be dining on turnip greens for awhile. There's enough for lots of other folks who want to come get them.

Our sympathy to the Colby family and the Vail families on the death of Mike Parsons, husband of Marion Colby Parsons, of Rumford Point. Marion lived several of her young years in Upton in a yellow house now owned by Donald Scott and located near the Upton/Cambridge road.

Tri-Town Rescue

Faced with the extremely high cost of replacing an ambulance and the ever-increasing cost of keeping the ambulance operational, the Tri-Town board of directors decided last week to increase the charge for use of the ambulance for non-emergency transfers and for out-of-town residents.

The old rate, which had never been increased, was $50 base rate plus $1.50 a loaded mile. The new rate, which will match the rate Bethel Ambulance charges, is $80 base rate plus $3 per loaded mile. Tri-Town Rescue still provides free emergency service to the residents and taxpayers of Greenwood and Summer, West Paris, Woodstock and Milton Plantation.

The annual Tri-Town picnic will be Sunday afternoon, July 31, at the barn at Trap Corner. Charlie Lowe is barbecuing chicken for the meal. Members are asked to bring a salad or dessert to share and their own beverage.

The next auxiliary meeting is Monday, Aug. 1, at 7 p.m., at the Trap Corner barn. New members are always welcome.

The auxiliary has scheduled a pancake breakfast Aug. 6, from 6:30 to 10:30 a.m., at the Tri-Town barn. The menu will include pancakes or scrambled eggs, bacon and toast.

IDA L. HADLEY

Ida L. Hadley, 83, died July 21, 1988 at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway where she was a patient.

She was born at Woodstock, June 30, 1905, the daughter of Charles E. and Harriet Bacon Hadley. She worked in the shoe manufacturing industry as a shoe designer in Massachusetts for many years. She lived in Chelsea, Mass., for several years and returned to Maine 17 years ago. She had recently made her home with Robert and Kathy Schert at Bryant Pond.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Maude Harta of West Paris, and nieces and nephews.

Courts bearing down on illegal bear hunting

Two recent court cases have again shown that violating Maine's hunting laws can be very costly.

The Maine Fish and Wildlife Department says that a Chesterville man was convicted on two counts of guiding without a Maine guide license and two counts of hunting bear with more than four dogs.

Norman L. Parent was found guilty in Franklin County Superior Court, Farmington, and sentenced by Judge Herbert T. Silsby to pay fines of $250 per count for a total fine of $1,000. Parent was also ordered to make restitution of $2,052 to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for expenses incurred by special agents of the service who operated undercover as nonresident hunters.

The violations occurred in October 1986 in Wilton and Mt. Abram Township.

Meanwhile, in Hancock County Superior Court, an Ellsworth man was found guilty of 16 counts of illegal hunting and guiding, receiving fines totaling $1,800 and a 90 day jail sentence.

Peter Mayo had all but five days of his jail sentence suspended by Justice Thomas Delahanty, who placed Mayo on probation for one year. A special condition of the sentence requires Mayo also to pay restitution of $1,500 to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Among the 16 charges for which Mayo was found guilty were: six counts of hunting bear after having killed one, five counts of guiding without a Maine guide license and one count each of exceeding the bag limit on bears, failure to register a bear, failure to attach a bear tag to a bear, illegal transportation of bear and unlawful hunting of bear with more than four dogs.

In the Parent case, investigative efforts were coordinated by Maine Warden Sergeant Michael Pratt, of Weld, with the cooperation of the Franklin County District Attorney's Office and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Coordinating the Mayo case investigation for the Maine Warden Service were Game Wardens William Downing and Gary Sargent.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service special agent on both cases was Richard Stott of Portland.

DOE PERMIT DEADLINE

Maine deer hunters who don't want to be limited to "bucks only" this fall are reminded that the deadline is approaching for them to apply for a 1988 any-deer permit.

The Maine Fish and Wildlife Department has established a firm deadline of Aug. 15 for receiving completed applications.

The Department plans to issue about 44,500 permits this year, entitling the holders to take either a buck or doe deer. Winners will be selected by computer drawing in September.

Application forms are available from town offices, license agents, deer tagging stations and offices of the Fish and Wildlife Department.
